The Shape Detective

Use your special shape magnifying glasses to find different shapes around your house and in nature!

Click on the image to the left to print the template. Then, cut out each "magnifying glass" to start using it! Laminate the page for a more realistic glass effect.

EXPANDED LEARNING

Memory Hack, playing with shapes - developing muscle memory is one of the best ways to create a deep and lasting understanding of a new skill or concept. One way to help your toddler solidify their understanding of shapes as a concept is to physically make them with their body or hands. Try using playdough make construct different shapes or draw them in sand using your finger.

PRO TIP!

Ask Questions - Try to ask open ended questions throughout a story readloud. This will engage your toddler and help them to not only practice literacy skills but also social/conversational skills. Example: "Why do you think the lion is going into the woods? What do you think he will do there?" Via Nemours Kids Health
